ABSTRACT

Serious concerns persist related to the independence of the Polish judiciary. Since July 2021, the Court of Justice and the European Court of Human Rights have delivered rulings, confirming a series of concerns identified by the Commission in the context of the procedure under Article 7(1) TEU and previous Rule of Law reports. Under the European Semester the Council, on a proposal of the Commission, recommended to Poland to enhance the investment climate, in particular by safeguarding judicial independence. In its Recovery and Resilience Plan (RRP), Poland committed to undertake reforms of the disciplinary regime regarding judges, to dismantle the Disciplinary Chamber of the Supreme Court, and to create review proceedings for judges affected by decisions of that Chamber aimed at strengthening certain aspects of the independence of the judiciary. Serious concerns related to the independence of the National Council for the Judiciary remain to be addressed. The Constitutional Tribunal issued further rulings directly challenging the primacy of EU law, the provisions of the EU Treaties and the European Convention on Human Rights. In December 2021, the Commission opened an infringement procedure regarding the Constitutional Tribunal and its case law. Concerns regarding the functioning of the prosecution service persist.

The government finished implementing the anti-corruption programme 2018-2020 even though not all of the actions envisaged therein had been completed and no subsequent programme was announced. Key legislative tasks of the programme, such as on asset declarations and lobbying, have not been completed. Concerns exist over the broad scope of immunities for top executives who are also members of Parliament, and impunity clauses for public officials who commit the crime of abuse of office. Risks remain as regards the effectiveness of the fight against high-level corruption, including the threat of selective application of the law and impunity caused by a disparity in the treatment of corruption cases for political purposes. The independence of main anti-corruption institutions remains an issue, considering in particular the subordination of the Central Anti-Corruption Bureau to the executive and the Minister of Justice also being the Prosecutor-General.

The independence of the media regulator is statutorily guaranteed and the legislation transposing the Audiovisual Media Services Directive provided further independency safeguards. Operating licensing practices show risks to media pluralism. Further measures concerning media ownership transparency were introduced, including an obligation to provide additional information on beneficial owners. Concerns over the independence of public service media remain, including over safeguards for appointments to executive positions. The general environment for journalists continues to deteriorate. Several reported lawsuits against journalists have an intimidating effect and journalists continue to be a target of abuse. Restrictions to the right of access to public information have been introduced under the state of emergency.

Legislation carrying out significant reforms continues to be frequently adopted while bypassing procedures that provide for adequate consultations, something which Poland has committed to address through the Recovery and Resilience Plan. Recently proposed initiatives could adversely affect the civic space and there are concerns about measures limiting activities of civil society. The Supreme Audit Office operates under adverse conditions. The newly appointed Ombudsman continues to play a key role as a rule of law safeguard, despite limited resources. Civil society organisations play a crucial role in providing help to refugees arriving in very high numbers from Ukraine to Poland.

RECOMMENDATIONS

In addition to recalling the need to address the serious concerns relating to judicial independence, in particular those set out in the Article 7 TEU procedure initiated by the Commission, as well as the obligation to comply with the rule of law related rulings of the ECJ and the rule of law related infringement procedures referred to in the country chapter, the commitments made under the National Recovery and Resilience Plan relating to certain aspects of the justice system and the checks and balances, and recalling the relevant country-specific recommendations under the European Semester, it is recommended to Poland to:

- Separate the function of the Minister of Justice from that of the Prosecutor-General and ensure functional independence of the prosecution service from the Government.
- Strengthen the existing integrity rules by introducing lobbying rules and a standardised online system for asset declarations of public officials and Members of Parliament.
- Ensure independent and effective investigations and prosecutions, address the broad scope of immunities for top executives and abstain from introducing impunity clauses in legislation in order to enable a robust track record of high-level corruption cases.
- Ensure that fair, transparent and non-discriminatory procedures are adhered to for the granting of operating licences to media outlets.
- Strengthen the rules and mechanisms to enhance the independent governance and editorial independence of public service media taking into account European standards on public service media.
- Ensure a more systematic follow-up to findings by the Supreme Audit Office and ensure a swift appointment of the College Members of the Supreme Audit Office.
- Improve the framework in which civil society and the Ombudsperson operate, taking into account European standards on civil society and Ombuds institutions.

I. JUSTICE SYSTEM

The Polish justice system is separated in two main branches, administrative and ordinary judiciary. The Supreme Administrative Court and 16 administrative courts exercise control over public administration, including the lawfulness of measures of local government bodies and of territorial organs of government administration. The ordinary judiciary, supervised by the Supreme Court¹, consists of three levels: 11 appeal courts, 47 regional courts and 318 district courts. Judges are appointed by the President of the Republic at the request of the National Council for the Judiciary. The Constitutional Tribunal, which adjudicates notably on the constitutionality of legislation, is composed of 15 judges chosen by the Sejm (lower chamber of the Parliament) for a term of office of 9 years. The National Council for the Judiciary is tasked by the Constitution to safeguard judicial independence. A particular characteristic of the prosecution system, which is not part of the independent judiciary, is that the Prosecutor General and the Minister of Justice are the same person. The Constitution provides that advocates and legal counsellors can self-regulate their practice.

Independence

The level of perceived judicial independence in Poland is now very low among the general public and continues to be very low among companies. Overall, 24% of the general population and 19% of companies perceive the level of independence of courts and judges to be ‘fairly or very good’ in 2022². According to data in the 2022 EU Justice Scoreboard, the perceived judicial independence among both the general public and companies has consistently decreased since 2016 (45% for the general public and 35% for companies). The perceived judicial independence among the general public has decreased in comparison with 2021 (30%), and has slightly increased or remained stable for companies (18%). The main reason cited³ by the general public and companies for the perceived lack of independence of courts and judges is the perception of interference or pressure from the Government and politicians.

Serious concerns related to the independence of the National Council for the Judiciary have not been addressed. The European Court of Justice confirmed⁴ that there are legitimate doubts as to the independence of the NCJ⁵. The Court of Justice further held that, whereas the fact that a body, such as a national council of the judiciary, which is involved in the procedure for the appointment of judges is, for the most part, made up of members chosen by the legislature cannot, in itself, give rise to any doubt as to the independence of the judges appointed at the end of that procedure, the situation may be different where that fact, combined with other relevant factors and the conditions under which those choices were made, leads to such doubts being raised.⁶ In a number of rulings, the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) considered the process of judicial appointments to a bench of the Chamber of Extraordinary Control and Public Affairs of the Supreme Court composed of three judges⁷ and a three member bench of the Civil Chamber of the Supreme Court⁸ inherently defective on account of the involvement of the NCJ lacking independence from the legislature and executive and the appointment upon the NCJ resolution in a procedure lacking effective judicial protection and despite the stay of the implementation of that resolution. So far, no steps have been taken to address the concerns identified by the ECtHR⁹, even though it has called for a rapid remedial action on the part of Poland¹⁰. Also, the Supreme Administrative Court established in a significant number of rulings the lack of independence of the NCJ¹¹. On 28 October 2021, the European Network of Councils for the Judiciary decided to expel the NCJ from their organisation,¹² essentially for its lack of independence and failure to defend judicial independence against attacks. As regards the exercise of its duty to safeguard judicial independence - except for a resolution issued in support of a Disciplinary Chamber judge - the NCJ has so far not adopted resolution in support to any judge in Poland¹³. Instead, the NCJ has called on the Prosecutor-General to take action against judges based on the content of their rulings¹⁴. In view of the expiry of the joint term of office of the NCJ judges-members, on 12 May 2022, the Polish Sejm appointed new judges-members of the NCJ¹⁵. The process was boycotted by the largest associations of judges and organisations of other legal professions, including the National Bar Council and the National Council of Legal Councillors, who called on judges not to apply for election¹⁶. Former members of the NCJ, appointed thereto in the ⁹ The ECtHR remains seized in a number of other cases concerning various aspects of the reorganisation of the Polish judicial system initiated in 2017. These cases concern notably procedures for appointments and promotions of ordinary court judges involving the NCJ following its reform of 2017, and the lack of judicial review of decisions of the President of the Republic concerning such appointments and promotions; see the press release ECHR 039(2021) of 3 February 2022. As regards the 2017 justice reforms in Poland, the ECtHR held that these successive judicial reforms had been aimed at weakening judicial independence, starting with the grave irregularities in the election of judges of the Constitutional Tribunal in December 2015, then, in particular, the remodeling of the NCJ and the setting up of new Supreme Court chambers, while extending the Minister of Justice's control over the courts and increasing his role in disciplinary regime for judges; cf. judgment of the European Court of Human Rights of 15 March 2022, Grzęda v. Poland, 43572/18, paragraph 348.

² Figures 50 and 52, 2022 EU Justice Scoreboard. The level of perceived judicial independence is categorised as follows: very low (below 30% of respondents perceive judicial independence as fairly good and very good); low (between 30-39%), average (between 40-59%), high (between 60-75%), very high (above 75%).

Notwithstanding the lack of formal resolutions, it should be noted that the NCJ lodged in November 2021 an appeal against a disciplinary court ruling, requesting that a more lenient sanction be imposed (case ASD 4/2018) and negatively assessed a proposal of the Deputy Minister of Justice to dismiss a court vice-president; see written contribution from the NCJ in the context of the country visit to Poland.

New reforms of the justice system, including a change of the judicial map, have been announced, with several of these already being put forward in draft legislation. Draft laws¹⁹ were proposed that would introduce the institution of courts of peace, composed of judges of peace²⁰ selected by the general population in open elections and appointed to a non-renewable six-year term of office by the President of the Republic acting upon recommendation of the NCJ. Whilst initiatives aimed at increasing the effectiveness of the justice system²¹ are to be welcomed, the proposed selection method of the judges of peace would give rise to concerns in the light of European standards on selection of judges. In addition, the Government prepared²² a comprehensive reform of the ordinary courts, including²³ a change of the judicial map aiming at increasing the efficiency of the judiciary²⁴. The reform would entail a forced transfer or retirement of ordinary court judges²⁵ as well as changes in the system of judicial promotions. The Ombudsperson expressed serious concerns on this draft law, noting in particular that it does not address the lack of independence of the National Council for the Judiciary and allows the Minister of Justice to decide on judicial promotions within the new structure of ordinary courts²⁶. Whereas the organisation of the judicial system may require certain transfers of judges, it is important that any interferences with the principle of irremovability of judges are justified and proportionate, in line with the case-law of the Court of Justice²⁷.

of the National Bar Council of 13 March 2022, and a statement of the Committee of Human Rights at the National Council of Legal Councillors of 15 March 2022.

Serious concerns have emerged as regards the implementation of certain European Court of Justice rulings on the Polish judiciary. On 14 July 2021, the Vice-President of the European Court of Justice granted interim measures²⁸ requested by the Commission in the context of the case C-204/21 R. In that infringement case, the Commission had referred Poland to the Court of Justice in view of concerns related to the law on the judiciary of December 2019 and the continued activities of the Disciplinary Chamber as regards judges²⁹. In view of developments on the ground, the Commission considered that Poland had failed to take the necessary measures to fully comply with that order for interim measures. Consequently, on 7 September 2021, the Commission requested the Court of Justice to impose a daily financial penalty³⁰. On 27 October 2021, the Vice-President of the Court of Justice imposed EUR 1 million as a daily penalty payment on Poland for as long as the interim measures order of 14 July 2021 has not been fully complied with. So far, Poland has not complied with the interim measures order. On 7 September 2021 the Commission decided to send a letter of formal notice to Poland³¹ considering that Poland had failed to take the necessary measures to fully comply with the judgment of the Court of Justice in the case C-791/19, concerning the disciplinary regime for judges in Poland.

A reform of the disciplinary regime has been adopted by the Sejm with the aim of fulfilling the commitments made under the Recovery and Resilience Plan (RRP). In the context of the European Semester, on 23 May 2022, prior to finalising its assessment of Poland's RRP, the Council, on a proposal of the Commission, issued a country specific recommendation to Poland to enhance the investment climate, in particular by safeguarding judicial independence³². On 1 June 2022, the Commission gave a positive assessment of Poland's RRP. It contains several commitments from Poland to improve the investment climate including a comprehensive reform of the disciplinary regime applicable to Polish judges, aimed at strengthening certain aspects of the independence of the judiciary. First, the reform should ensure that all cases against judges, including disciplinary cases and decisions on the lifting of judicial immunity, will be adjudicated by a court that complies with the requirements under Article 19(1) TEU to be independent, impartial, and established by law. Second, judges cannot be subject to disciplinary liability for submitting a request for a preliminary ruling to the Court of Justice, for the content of their judicial decisions, or for verifying whether another court is independent, impartial, and established by law. Third, procedural rights of parties in disciplinary proceedings are to be strengthened. Fourth, a review procedure must be set allowing all judges affected by rulings of the current Disciplinary Chamber to have these rulings reviewed without delay by a court that complies with the requirements of Article 19(1) TEU. The Council endorsed the Commission's positive assessment and adopted an Implementing Decision on the Polish RRP on 17 June. Poland will need to demonstrate that the corresponding milestones have been fulfilled before any disbursement under the RRF can be made. On 9 June 2022, the Sejm adopted a set of amendments to the disciplinary regime for judges. The President of the Republic signed the Law of 9 June 2022 amending the law on the Supreme Court and certain laws, which was published in the Journal of Laws on 14 June 2022 and enters into force on 14 July 2022³³. This reform will be analysed by the Commission.

³¹ If the Commission considers that the Member State concerned has not taken the necessary measures to comply with the judgment of the Court of Justice, it may bring the case before the Court after giving that State the opportunity to submit its observations in reply to the letter of formal notice, under Article 260 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union. The Polish authorities submitted their reply on 8 November 2021. This reply is currently being analysed in view of deciding on next steps.

Poland committed to dismantle the Disciplinary Chamber which, despite rulings of the Court of Justice, continued to decide on cases concerning judges, including by suspending them in office. In its RPP, Poland committed that all cases against judges, including disciplinary cases and decisions on the lifting of judicial immunity, will be adjudicated by an independent and impartial court established by law, different from the current Disciplinary Chamber. It also committed to circumscribe the discretionary power to designate the disciplinary court with jurisdiction at first instance in cases concerning judges of ordinary courts. The new law provides for the establishment of a Chamber of Professional Liability, which will be analysed by the Commission. Despite rulings of the Court of Justice, the Disciplinary Chamber decided in several cases to either suspend judges in office in the context of disciplinary proceedings³⁴, or to lift their immunity for the purpose of criminal investigation³⁵, including in view of the content of their judicial decisions (including Supreme Court judges). These cases were initiated, following the interim measures order of 14 July 2021, by the Minister of Justice or court presidents appointed by him against judges who questioned the status of other judges due to their appointment upon a proposal by the NCJ in its composition based on the rules introduced in 2017³⁶. Following the interim measures order of the Court of Justice, the Chamber of Labour Law and Social Security of the Supreme Court allowed one of its judges – suspended in office by the Disciplinary Chamber – to continue adjudicating cases³⁷. On 23 May 2022, the Disciplinary Chamber reinstated one of the judges suspended by the Disciplinary Chamber in disciplinary proceedings, who was immediately obliged to take leave, until 19 July 2022, and transferred without his consent to another court division by the president of the district court where he adjudicates³⁸. Two court presidents appointed to the office by the Minister of Justice disregarded rulings of national courts obliging them to allow judges, subject to suspension by virtue of resolutions of the Disciplinary Chamber, to continue adjudicating cases³⁹. In its ruling of 22 July 2021, the European Court of Human Rights ruled that the procedure for appointing judges to the Disciplinary Chamber

It is also noted that on 23 May 2022, the Disciplinary Chamber overturned one of its decisions whereby it had suspended an ordinary court judge on 4 February 2020. Disciplinary charges concerning among others the content of a judicial decision of the judge concerned remain pending (see press communique of the Supreme Court of 23 May 2022).

³⁶ The decisions are taken on the basis of Article 130(1) of the Law on the Ordinary Courts Organisation.

³⁹ This concerns rulings of civil courts issued in cases of two judges suspended in office.

amounted to a fundamental irregularity adversely affecting the whole process and compromising its legitimacy, considering that the Disciplinary Chamber hearing the case was not a tribunal established by law⁴⁰. The European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) issued a number of interim measures orders to protect judges from having their disciplinary cases examined or their immunity lifted by the Disciplinary Chamber. Furthermore, in spite of a Court of Justice judgment, the President of the Disciplinary Chamber continued to designate⁴¹ disciplinary courts of first instance⁴².

The Constitutional Tribunal issued a further ruling that directly challenges the primacy of EU law and key provisions of the EU Treaties and continued challenging the ECHR, amidst persisting concerns over its independence and legitimacy. The Constitutional Tribunal has continued⁴³ to develop its case-law questioning the compatibility with the Polish Constitution of provisions of the EU Treaties and the ECHR. On 7 October 2021, the Constitutional Tribunal ruled i.a. that Article 19(1) TEU is unconstitutional in so far as, ensure effective legal protection in the fields covered by EU law, it confers on national courts the power to bypass, in the course of adjudication, provisions of the Polish Constitution, and to rule on the basis of provisions which are not binding, repealed or declared unconstitutional⁴⁴. Moreover, in the same ruling the Constitutional Tribunal declared the unconstitutionality of Article 19(1), second subparagraph, and Article 2 TEU, in so far as – to ensure effective legal protection in the fields covered by EU law and to ensure judicial independence – these provisions empower national courts to rule on issues regarding the judiciary⁴⁵. On 22 December 2021, in view of this case law as well as of the concerns related to the Constitutional Tribunal no longer meeting the requirements of an independent and impartial tribunal previously established by law as required by Article 19(1) TEU, the Commission launched an infringement procedure, which is still ongoing⁴⁶. In addition, the Constitutional Tribunal held in rulings of 24 November 2021 and 10 March 2022⁴⁷ that Article 6 ECHR is unconstitutional to the extent that it applies to the Constitutional Tribunal and empowers the ECtHR to assess the legality of the appointment of Constitutional Tribunal judges and to the extent that, among others, it empowers national courts and the ECtHR to carry out a specific assessment in the context of determining the compliance of other courts with the requirement of a ‘court established by law’⁴⁸. In addition, the Constitutional Tribunal remains seized in a number of other cases contesting the constitutionality of provisions of EU law, notably Article 322 TFEU⁴⁹, and the power of the Court of Justice to impose daily financial penalties on Poland⁵⁰. In view of the rulings on the unconstitutionality of the ECHR, the Secretary General of the Council of Europe formally requested Poland, under Article 52 ECHR, to explain the manner in which its national law ensures the effective implementation of the Convention⁵¹.

The Supreme Court has been subject to rulings of the European Courts and has undergone further changes in its management. On 6 October 2021, the Court of Justice clarified in specific circumstances the impact of irregularities in a judicial appointment procedure of a Supreme Court judge on the fulfilment by that judge of the requirements stemming from Article 19(1) TEU⁵². The impact of irregularities in judicial appointments to the Supreme Court was also addressed in rulings of the European Court of Human Rights⁵³. On 30 September 2021, the President of the Republic appointed⁵⁴ a new President of the Civil Chamber⁵⁵ following a contested procedure⁵⁶. It is noted that this new President of the Civil Chamber changed the composition of the referring court responsible for the implementation of a preliminary ruling of the Court of Justice relating to irregularities in the appointment of a Supreme Court judge⁵⁷. The First President of the Supreme Court publicly stated that the implementation of Court of Justice rulings concerning the judiciary constitutes a breach of Polish law, calling on the political authorities to address the situation through a legislative ⁴⁸ These rulings were issued following motions of the Prime Minister (as regards the case K 3/21 in which the Constitutional Tribunal ruled on 7 October 2021) and the Prosecutor-General (as regards cases K 6/21 and K 7/21) who is at the same time the Minister of Justice.

⁵⁰ Case K 8/21. A similar motion was also submitted by a group of Members of Parliament of the governing majority (case K 5/21).

⁵² Judgment of the Court of Justice of 6 October 2021, W.Ż., C-487/19, where the Court of Justice held that the order by which a court, ruling at last instance and sitting as a single judge, dismissed the action of a judge transferred against his will, must be declared null and void if the appointment of that single judge took place in clear breach of fundamental rules which form an integral part of the establishment and functioning of the judicial system concerned and the integrity of the outcome of that procedure is undermined, giving rise to reasonable doubt in the minds of individuals as to the independence and impartiality of the judge concerned.

⁵³ See the paragraph on the National Council for the Judiciary and the Disciplinary Chamber (above).

⁵⁴ On 2 September 2021, 10 and 24 February 2022, the President of the Republic appointed, respectively, a President of the Labour Law and Social Security Chamber, a President of the Chamber of Extraordinary Control and Public Affairs and a President of the Disciplinary Chamber of the Supreme Court.

⁵⁶ On 27 September 2021, an official statement was published by the Supreme Court referring to the position of a majority (14) judges of the Civil Chamber who contested the selection procedure (see press communique of the Supreme Court).

proposal. The First President also publicly criticised⁵⁸ decisions of other Supreme Court judges whereby they annulled rulings of lower instance courts or decided on the recusal of judges in defiance of the case law of the Constitutional Tribunal⁵⁹. The First President also requested, that a disciplinary investigation be opened against Supreme Court judges in view of the content of a judicial decision they took, of the composition of the bench, and of doubts as to their impartiality⁶⁰.

Concerns regarding the functioning of the prosecution service persist. The offices of Minister of Justice and Prosecutor-General continue to be occupied by the same person⁶¹. The practice of seconding⁶² prosecutors, already considered by Polish courts to be a form of demotion and discrimination⁶³, continues to be used by superior prosecutors⁶⁴. Instructions binding on prosecutors reportedly continue to be issued in concrete cases⁶⁵. The instrumentalisation of the prosecution service is further exemplified in cases in which a preliminary ruling request was made⁶⁶ and by the opening of a criminal investigation in a case concerning judges of the Court of Justice⁶⁷. Furthermore, the National Prosecutor's Office

⁶⁷ As confirmed by the spokesperson of the Regional Prosecutor's Office in Warsaw. The investigation concerns allegations of the abuse of competences and failure to carry out duties by members of the European Court of Auditors and judges of the Court of Justice. TVP.info of 25 January 2021 where a statement of the public issued instructions binding on all prosecutors recalling the allegedly non-binding force of judgments of the European Court of Justice and of the ECtHR⁶⁸ as well as requesting prosecutors to report to the National Prosecutor's office and to the Disciplinary Officer cases in which judges question the status of other judges⁶⁹. Prosecution services are also seized in the context of actions undertaken by judges⁷⁰. Whilst the European Public Prosecutor's Office (EPPO) currently has 23 ongoing investigations involving Poland, the Polish prosecution services refuse to cooperate with the EPPO⁷¹. Furthermore, as regards the environment for legal professions, no measures were taken to remove the power of prosecutors to suspend a lawyer's licence without prior consent of the court⁷². Also, disciplinary actions were undertaken against a legal councillor who submitted requests for recusal of judges on account of their possible irregular appointment⁷³.

Quality

Poland is progressing well as regards digitalisation of the justice system, while room for improvement remains. Administrative cases benefit from a comprehensive set of IT tools. Such tools could be further improved, notably as regards civil cases⁷⁴. This could ensure that distance communication technology can be used to contact relevant parties to proceedings in all types of civil cases, to provide for a possibility of filing a claim online and to ensure that access to the electronic file of ongoing cases exists in all types of civil and commercial cases⁷⁵. The current rules, measures and technological tools allow for a remote hearing; in addition, business and debt registers are kept in full electronic form and traders are handled electronically; also, since July 2021, the service of judicial documents via the Information Portal of the Common Courts has been operational; moreover, legislative work is underway at the Ministry of Justice with a view to using information technology enabling, inter alia, parties' access to procedural documents and with a view to shortening court proceedings⁷⁶. Further improvement would be needed to introduce electronic case files both in ordinary courts and in prosecutor's office is reproduced. See also a decision of 15 December 2021 No. 3041-1.Ds.90.2021 of the Regional Prosecutor's Office in Warsaw (I Criminal Division).

⁷¹ On 16 February 2022, the European Public Prosecutor's Office (EPPO) sent a letter to the Commission on the lack of cooperation by Poland. Given that whenever the EPPO is carrying out a criminal investigation of a cross-border nature, it is unable to obtain evidence located in Poland, the EPPO's ability to counter criminality affecting the Union budget is systematically hindered.

the Supreme Court, thus facilitating the circulation of files between courts⁷⁷. Work is ongoing to introduce a uniform IT system for all courts in Poland⁷⁸. At the same time, no steps have been taken to revise the system of case allocation that was found to be prone to abuse, in spite of concerns expressed to that end by the Supreme Audit Office⁷⁹.

Efficiency

The overall performance of ordinary and administrative courts remains stable. As regards ordinary courts, their overall performance remains average. In 2020, there was a decrease in the estimated time needed to resolve litigious civil and commercial cases at all three instances, and the rate of resolving such cases at first instance improved⁸⁰. Poland remains under enhanced supervision of the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe for the length of civil and criminal proceedings⁸¹. As regards administrative courts, their performance remains above average⁸².

II. ANTI-CORRUPTION FRAMEWORK

Several authorities are responsible for anti-corruption in Poland, including the Prosecutor-General, who is also the Minister of Justice, and the Minister of Internal Affairs and Administration who is in charge of prevention aspects, such as the lobby register for public officials. The Central Anti-Corruption Bureau is the specialised law enforcement body combating corruption in the public and the private sector alongside the Central Police Investigation Bureau and the regular police, the Internal Security Agency and the Prosecution Service⁸³. The Central Anti-Corruption Bureau combines intelligence and police functions, and can trigger both administrative and criminal proceedings. It has also been tasked with policy coordination⁸⁴ and corruption prevention, including educational awareness-raising activities against corruption and an e-learning platform⁸⁵. The Supreme Audit Office (NIK) has a preventive role monitoring the public spending of the government administration bodies, including the National Bank of Poland and state legal persons⁸⁶.

The perception among experts and business executives is that the level of corruption in the public sector remains relatively high. In the 2021 Corruption Perceptions Index by Transparency International, Poland scores 56/100 and ranks 13th in the European Union and 42nd globally⁸⁷. This perception has deteriorated over the past five years⁸⁸. The 2022 Special Eurobarometer on Corruption shows that 55% of respondents consider corruption widespread in their country (EU average 68%) and 39% of respondents feel personally affected by corruption in their daily lives (EU average 24%)⁸⁹. As regards businesses, 44% of companies consider that corruption is widespread (EU average 63%) and 19% consider that corruption is a problem when doing business (EU average 34%)⁹⁰. Furthermore, 47% of respondents find that there are enough successful prosecutions to deter people from corrupt practices (EU average 34%)⁹¹, while 19% of companies believe that people and businesses caught for bribing a senior official are appropriately punished (EU average 29%)⁹².

The audit⁹³ of the Government Anti-Corruption Programme 2018-2020 found that the programme was partly implemented⁹⁴. The government has finalised the implementation of the programme⁹⁵ and reported that more than 57.5% of the planned actions were implemented in adverse circumstances. The programme aimed to raise awareness about and reduce corruption with the specific goals of (i) strengthening preventive and educational activities, (ii) improving the monitoring of corruption risks and anti-corruption regulation, and (iii) enhancing the cooperation and coordination between law enforcement authorities at national and international level. The implementation was coordinated by the Intersectoral Group of the Central Anti-Corruption Bureau⁹⁶ and was audited by the Supreme Audit Office⁹⁷ with the focus on the extent of the implementation, the conditions for the implementation, including the

⁸⁸ In 2017 the score was 60, while in 2021 the score is 56. The score significantly increases/decreases when it changes more than five points; improves/deteriorates (changes between 4-5 points), and is relatively stable (changes from 1-3 points) in the last five years.

Supreme Audit Office (2022), Post-audit presentation of the audit Implementation of the Government Anti-Corruption Programme for 2018-2020. The Supreme Audit Office positively assesses the implementation of the programme with regard to the measures for the Ministry of Development and Technology, while referencing also the lack of implementation of actions.

pandemic, as well as the results and impact of the Programme⁹⁸. While most of the objectives to provide educational material and trainings have been met, the implementation of important legislative initiatives specified in the programme has not been completed. These include, in particular, the bill on Liability of Collective Entities, the reform of the asset declaration system, and the revision of the lobbying legislation⁹⁹. No public announcement was made for the adoption of a new anti-corruption strategy beyond 2020¹⁰⁰.

The legal framework to fight corruption has been reinforced, yet gaps remain. The Polish Criminal Code broadly criminalises corruption¹⁰¹. Amendments of the Criminal Code to fight corruption in public life¹⁰² entered into force on 1 January 2022 to counter corruption practices and increase transparency of public life by introducing new tools to address conflicts of interest of public office holders¹⁰³ and stricter criminal sanctions for corruption¹⁰⁴. Among the new tools are the registers to enhance transparency in political party finance¹⁰⁵ and a ban for public officials, including local government representatives, to take up positions in state-owned enterprises¹⁰⁶. However, the ban on secondary activities does not extend to current deputies ⁹⁹ Central Anti-Corruption Bureau (2020), Implementation report of the Governmental Anti-Corruption Programme for 2018-2020 in 2019; p. 2, on the suspension of work regarding asset declarations). According to information received from the Batory Foundation/ Helsinki Foundation in the context of the country visit to Poland, the Ministry of Justice discontinued the work on the bill on Liability of Collective Entities, for which a draft, currently still internal bill was prepared, while the Ministry of Internal Affairs and Administration does not currently pursue the work on lobbying. For more information on these specific aspects, see also further below the section on lobbying.

¹⁰⁰ According to the government, preparatory work for a new national strategy to prevent and combat corruption was already underway in the first half of 2021, which should take into account the recommendations of the EU, the Group of States against Corruption (GRECO), the OECD, and the UN. See 2021 Rule of Law Report, Country Chapter on the rule of law situation in Poland, p. 16.

¹⁰¹ GRECO confirms that the legislation in place broadly complies with the Council of Europe's Criminal Law Convention on Corruption (ETS 173) and its Additional Protocol (ETS 191), GRECO - Third Round Evaluation Report. The key offence penalised by the Criminal Code is bribery of public officials in its passive (accepting a bribe) and active (offering a bribe) forms. The term 'person holding a public position' as defined by law has a broad scope, including among others the President of the Republic of Poland, members of Parliament, judges, notaries, officers of a public authority, members of local authorities, etc.

¹⁰² Law amending the Criminal Code and certain other acts (14 October 2021).

¹⁰³ The Law amends the 1997 Law on Restriction on Conduct of Business Activities by Persons Performing Public Functions and the 1996 Law on the Exercise of the Mandate of a Deputy and Senator.

¹⁰⁴ The Law introduces three significant changes in this regard, including new criminal sanctions that can be imposed between 1 and 15 years, or for life in case of (apart from the already existing prohibition to hold a public function after a corruption conviction) with the underlying objective to counter corrupt practices and to increase openness and transparency in public life.

¹⁰⁵ For more details, see section below on political party finance.

¹⁰⁶ The amendment stipulates that during the exercise of their mandate deputies, senators and mayors may not be employed or engaged in any other occupation in commercial companies, in which the State Treasury or a local government hold, directly or indirectly through other entities, at least 10% of shares. In general, Poland has broadly criminalised corruption in line with the Council of Europe's Criminal Law Convention on Corruption (ETS 173) and its Additional Protocol (ETS 191), as confirmed by the Group of States against Corruption; See GRECO Third Evaluation Round – Evaluation Report. The key offence penalised is bribery of public officials in its passive and active forms (accepting or offering a bribe). The term 'person holding a public position' as defined by law has a broad scope, including among others the President of the Republic of Poland, members of Parliament, judges, notaries, officers of a public authority, members of local authorities, etc.

and senators or municipality-owned enterprises¹⁰⁷. Apart from the prohibition to hold public functions following corruption convictions, the reform introduces criminal sanctions for corruption ranging from one to 15 years, including a life sentence for repeat corruption offences¹⁰⁸, which raises questions concerning its proportionality¹⁰⁹. The fight against corruption, including in key areas of public administration, has been included as a priority for the police for 2021-2023¹¹⁰. Priority areas include the enhancement of police operations in combating key types of crime, including corruption crimes.

Concerns regarding the effectiveness in fighting foreign bribery still need to be addressed¹¹¹. As regards foreign bribery, the OECD had called on Poland to remove the Criminal Code provision that allows the perpetrators of bribery to avoid legal sanctions if they notify the responsible authorities about the crime and disclose all circumstances before the authorities learn about it, as it leads to impunity¹¹². Deficiencies have also been highlighted with regard to the effective enforcement to tackle foreign bribery¹¹³ since a private company can only be held criminally liable for foreign bribery after the individual who committed the bribe was convicted in final instance. The level of sanctions in this regard with too low fines for companies are not considered effective, proportionate or dissuasive¹¹⁴. A draft law is being discussed in the Parliament that would amend provisions defining passive and active bribery, including foreign bribery¹¹⁵.

Obstacles to the effective repression of corruption, including high-level corruption, remain. Corruption investigations and prosecutions tend to be lengthy, partly due to the need ¹⁰⁷ Ibid, as also confirmed by information received from the Batory Foundation in the context of the country visit to Poland.

¹⁰⁸ Article 43 of the Criminal Code. The criminal sanctions will be mandatory for public officials committing the corruption crimes specified in the criminal code and possible for any other individual committing specific corruption crimes. See also Article 41(1)(b) of the Criminal Code.

¹¹² OECD (2015), Poland: Follow-Up to the Phase 3 Report & Recommendations , p. 4. Cf. also OECD (2018), Poland must make urgent legislative reforms to combat foreign bribery.

for additional human and technical resources to the prosecution service¹¹⁶. The level of specialisation and digitalisation of the services involved is not always sufficient to carry out their tasks to combat corruption effectively¹¹⁷. Regarding high-level corruption cases, concerns remain about institutionalised corruption¹¹⁸ and a risk of impunity caused by a disparity in the treatment of corruption cases for political purposes, which potentially breaches the principle of equality before the law¹¹⁹. These concerns are based on the increased influence of the executive branch of power over the judiciary, the prosecution and police with the entire chain of criminal proceedings being exposed to risks of political interference, undermining the effectiveness of anti-corruption efforts in respect of persons in top executive functions¹²⁰. Concerns regarding the broad scope of immunities of persons exercising top executive functions who are also members of Parliament have not been addressed, preventing criminal accountability for corruption crimes regardless of whether they are related to the members' official duties¹²¹. The fact that the Minister of Justice continues to serve also as Prosecutor-General adds to the concerns over the independence of the Central Anti-Corruption Bureau from the executive power¹²². The increased supervisory powers of the Prosecutor-General, who can issue instructions in individual cases, including not to prosecute, and take over corruption cases of his subordinate prosecutors, provides avenues to influence anti-corruption prosecutions politically, which has also been the case on several occasions¹²³. In this context, concerns exist about the risks of politically motivated investigations and wiretapping of public officials,

The Polish Government has analysed the effectiveness of its lobbying rules but the findings have not been made public. A legislative amendment to the current lobbying regulation¹²⁵ dating back to 2005 was one of the objectives set out in the Government's Anti-Corruption Programme for 2018-2020¹²⁶. Yet, no legislative amendments have been proposed. The applicable law defines lobbying, establishes a public register as well as determines obligations and sanctions for unregistered lobbyists. In this context, Poland does not have lobbying rules obliging persons exercising top executive functions to transparently disclose their contacts with interest representatives¹²⁷. In practice, however, there are three lobby registers in place, one for the Government (based on the lobbying regulation), one for the lower chamber of Parliament (Sejm), and one covering its higher chamber (Senate)¹²⁸. For lobbying activities towards the government, the Minister of Internal Affairs and Administration is the supervisory body¹²⁹. For members of Parliament, the two chambers have supervisory tasks over lobbying activities¹³⁰. Concerns persist as to the effectiveness of these registers with low and declining registration rates.¹³¹ The oversight is not systematic and no information is available on whether sanctions have been applied to unregistered lobbyists¹³². Post-employment ('revolving doors') rules exist for top-level officials but do not extend to members of Parliament and are limited to entities that the respective public official dealt with professionally or issued specific decisions¹³³.

There are various systems for asset declarations and controls but the initiative to standardise them is not being pursued¹³⁴. The creation of a uniform system for the submission and analysis of asset declarations for public officials was one of the measures of the Government Anti-Corruption Programme 2018-2020¹³⁵. The Central Anti-Corruption Bureau prepared a draft regulation, however, it has not been made public¹³⁶. The technical work towards a more standardised, electronic system was suspended until appropriate legislative steps are taken¹³⁷. Until then, a centralised submission and monitoring system is lacking, while the level of digitalisation of politicians' asset declaration continues to be low¹³⁸. Most declarations are still filled out by hand, with various declaration forms being in use¹³⁹. The scope of data to be disclosed is similar but not streamlined for every public official required to submit declarations.

Whistleblowers can report corruption in an official online reporting system, while dedicated legislation for whistleblowers' protection is in preparation. The Central Anti-Corruption Bureau hosts a helpline system for anonymous disclosures by citizens¹⁴⁰. There is no analytical data available on the use and effectiveness of this hotline in practice¹⁴¹. A new draft law on whistleblower protection is in preparation to transpose the relevant EU directive¹⁴². The legislative process is still at governmental level and no timeline for adoption is available¹⁴³. Until amendments are introduced to the current whistleblower framework, whistleblowers' protection is provided for in different legal provisions¹⁴⁴.

New measures aim at increasing transparency in political party finance rules, while concerns have arisen regarding election campaigns. The law on the Political Parties was revised by criminal code amendments¹⁴⁵ introducing the obligation for political parties to maintain up-to-date a register of donations¹⁴⁶ and a register of contracts of political parties¹⁴⁷. Overall, stakeholders assess the registers' potential to increase transparency in political party finances as a step in the right direction¹⁴⁸. Concerns have, however, been raised by the Personal Data Protection Office that the disclosure of the donors' identity in the register of donations would allow the identification of the donors' political affiliation¹⁴⁹. Furthermore, the exclusion from the register of individual donations to the Electoral Fund have raised questions as to the new rules' impact in practice¹⁵⁰, as the Electoral Fund is the only source of funds used to finance election campaigns. The revised law on the Political Parties entered into force on 1 July 2022¹⁵¹. Furthermore, in September 2021, a court ruled that the prosecutor's office is to resume the investigations into the so-called envelope elections of May 2020 that concern allegations of misuse of public funds¹⁵².

'Impunity clauses' in public procurement rules, first introduced during the COVID-19 pandemic, continue to raise concern of corruption risks. Several temporary exemptions from criminal and disciplinary responsibility for the abuse of power by public officials ('impunity clauses') who manage public funds or purchase equipment, services, and other resources were introduced during the pandemic¹⁵³. Following the failure to adopt extensions of ¹⁴⁶ New Article 25(6)-(13) of the Political Parties Act. The register of donations is in electronic form, searchable and made available in a public information bulletin operated by the political parties, including information only on those donations exceeding the amount of approximately EUR 2,500 (i.e. PLN 10,000) of a person in a single year, excluding membership fees. In case of failure of compliance with the new obligation, an administrative monetary sanction is applied (equal to 50% of the amount of payments made).

¹⁴⁷ New Articles 27(a)-(c) of the Political Parties Act; Article 4 of the Law amending the Criminal Code and certain other acts (14 October 2021). The register of contracts is in electronic form and made public. The register includes information on the contract number, data and place of the contract signature, contract period, parties to the contract and their representatives, the subject, value and mode of the contract. In case of failure of compliance with the new obligation, the same administrative monetary sanctions apply as for the register of donations, see footnote above.

¹⁴⁹ See letter of the President of the Personal Data Protection Office to the Chancellery of the Sejm of 30 June 2021. The register includes personal data, including the name and address of the donating individual, the date and the amount of the donation.

¹⁵⁰ While individual donations to parties have rarely exceeded 10% of the annual revenue of political parties, individual donations to the Electoral Fund have played a more important role in the financing in the past, having accounted to approximately 40% of the Funds' revenues in the years of 2011-2016, according to the Batory Foundation (2017), p. 146.

¹⁵¹ Article 15 of the Law amending the Criminal Code and certain other acts (14 October 2021).

¹⁵³ The Central Anti-Corruption Bureau is in charge of the anticorruption-related aspects of the Government Anti-Crisis Shield providing financial support to micro, small and medium-size and large enterprises to combat the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic. Exemptions from criminal responsibility were included, in particular: in Article 10(c) of the Law amending the Law of 31 March 2020 on Specific Measures to Prevent, Counteract and Combat COVID-19 and Other Contagious Diseases and Associated Crisis Situations and Certain Other those temporary exemptions beyond the previously introduced limited scope of time, a case was brought before the Constitutional Tribunal and is still pending to examine whether the crime of abuse of power by public officials, as laid down in the Criminal Code, is constitutional in such circumstances¹⁵⁴. A similar impunity clause was also proposed in the recent draft law on aid for Ukrainian refugees¹⁵⁵, excluding criminal liability during war times, which was, however, discarded due to increased public and media attention¹⁵⁶. Such exemptions from criminal responsibility introduce corruption risks and may foster the abuse of political and administrative power due to the lack of deterrence and perception of impunity.

III. MEDIA FREEDOM AND MEDIA PLURALISM

According to the Constitution, the public interest regarding radio broadcasting and television is safeguarded by the National Broadcasting Council (KRRiT) whose members are appointed by the Sejm, the Senate and the President of the Republic. Freedom of the press and other means of social communication are constitutionally protected. The Law on Broadcasting and the Press Law provide, respectively, a legal framework for the media regulator - the KRRiT and safeguards for journalistic independence. The Law on Broadcasting was amended to transpose the revised Audiovisual Media Services Directive¹⁵⁷ and included further provisions relevant for the transparency of media ownership¹⁵⁸.

Changes in the legal framework contributed to the strengthening of the statutory safeguards for the independence of the media regulator. Legislation transposing the revised Audiovisual Media Services Directive (AVMSD) was adopted on 11 August 2021, through an amendment of the Broadcasting Act. The revision included provisions pertinent to the independence of the media regulator, in particular by making the procedure for dismissing its members more rigid¹⁵⁹. To this end, it introduced an obligation to require the President of the Republic to confirm the expiry of the KRRiT members' term of office, following a negative Laws, adopted in March 2020 (in force for 180 days between 8 March 2020 and 4 September 2020); in Article 76 of the Law on special support instruments in connection with the spread of SARS-COV-2 virus, adopted in April 2020; and in Article 10(d) of the Law amending the Law of 31 March 2020 on Specific Measures to Prevent, Counteract and Combat COVID-19 and Other Contagious Diseases and Associated Crisis Situations and Certain Other Laws, proposed in August 2020 (not adopted).

¹⁵⁷ Complete transposition of the Audiovisual Media Services Directive was notified to the Commission in November 2021.

¹⁵⁸ Poland ranks 66th in the 2022 Reporters without Borders World Press Freedom Index compared to 64th in the previous year.

vote by the two Chambers of Parliament. Both the resolutions, as well as any confirmation by the President, need to be reasoned. Despite the legal safeguards being in place, as noted by different stakeholders, challenges relate to close political ties of some members of the KRRiT to the governing party, which may undermine its independence¹⁶⁰. This is also reflected by the 2022 Media Pluralism Monitor, which states that the existing appointment procedures do not ensure effective limitation of political influence¹⁶¹. Also, the list of responsibilities of the media regulator has been widened to align it with the revised AVMSD, for instance when it comes to actions related to video sharing platforms.

Recent developments concerning operating licensing show existing risks to media pluralism. As noted in last year's Rule of Law Report¹⁶², there are concerns related to reducing media pluralism through modification of requirements for obtaining a licence. Proposed legislative amendments¹⁶³, allowing not to grant broadcasting concessions to operators directly or indirectly controlled by persons registered outside the EEA, were subject to a Presidential veto and, therefore, did not become part of the Polish legal order. Concerns were also raised regarding the lack of transparency of the legislative process of these amendments¹⁶⁴. Controversies around the extension of the broadcasting licences for both TVN24 and TVN7 channels¹⁶⁵ show risks in relation to the operation of independent media actors¹⁶⁶. In the case of TVN24, KRRiT decided to extend its licence but only after 18 months and the TVN7 licence was extended after more than 12 months from the extension request being made. While both licences were ultimately extended for the period of 10 years, the administrative proceedings by the KRRiT were considered as particularly long, although the Broadcasting Law provides for a simplified examination procedure in the case of a request for license renewal¹⁶⁷. Moreover, when extending the TVN24 license, KRRiT issued a resolution mirroring the rationale of the above-mentioned problematic legislative proposal¹⁶⁸.

Further obligations concerning media ownership transparency have been adopted. The 2022 Media Pluralism Monitor reports medium risk in relation to the media ownership transparency, noting that the public has less readily-available access to the relevant ownership or financial data than authorities. The 2021 amendment of the Broadcasting Law, which transposes the revised AVMSD, expanded the scope of the transparency obligations for media service providers¹⁶⁹. The new rules include an obligation to provide information on beneficial ¹⁶⁶ Under the Broadcasting Law, the applicant has to submit a request no later than 12 months before expiry of the current licence. The Law does not specify a time limit for the media regulator to decide. One could expect the national media regulator to issue its decision regarding a new broadcasting licence before the expiry of the current license. There are also alternative interpretations concerning the procedures and deadlines envisaged for the renewal of a broadcasting licence. There are concerns regarding the independence of Polish public service media. Following the 2016 reform¹⁷¹, the competences related to public service media are distributed between the National Media Council (RMN)¹⁷² and National Broadcasting Council (KRRiT). Under the current legal framework, the RMN is competent for the appointment and removal of the management and supervisory boards of the Polish Television (TVP), the Polish Radio and the Polish Press Agency¹⁷³. The 2022 Media Pluralism Monitor reports high risks in relation to independence of public service media governance and funding, referring to the support of the public service media management towards growing political partisanship as well as points the issues related to the justification and opaqueness of the public service media funding. Concerning the media regulator, KRRiT has powers related to the charters of duties of public service media and their yearly programming as well as financial plans, and to the assessment of yearly reports regarding performance of their public service remit. However, as reported by stakeholders and the Media Pluralism Monitor, KRRiT appears to be unwilling to react against imbalanced reporting on public services media, which stands out in comparison to cases of harsh reactions towards reporting disseminated by independent private media¹⁷⁴. As pointed out by a stakeholder, the existing division of competences between KRRiT and RMN limits KRRiT's capacity to carry out its constitutional mission of safeguarding the freedom of speech and the right to information and public interest in radio and television broadcasting¹⁷⁵. No legislative developments concerning the distribution of state advertisements were reported in 2021, however as confirmed by the 2022 Media Pluralism report challenges persist over its fair and transparent distribution¹⁷⁶. These concern, in particular, channeling state advertising to government-sympathetic media outlets¹⁷⁷.

Introduction of the state of emergency negatively affected the right of access to information, in particular by humanitarian organisations and journalists. Following the introduction on 2 September 2021 of a state of emergency in the area adjacent to the Polish-Belarusian border, the area was excluded from any media scrutiny, and no provision was made for a system of accreditation allowing access for journalists. There were reports of journalists being apprehended¹⁷⁸, and in several instances journalists were informed by the police that they would face criminal charges for reporting from the emergency zone¹⁷⁹, and some were fined for their activities¹⁸⁰. The Supreme Court acquitted journalists found in breach of these rules, considering the prohibition introduced by the Government as disproportionate and unconstitutional¹⁸¹. Another law concerning the situation at the Belarussian border¹⁸², empowered the border guard to grant the access to the zone to selected media, whilst retaining full control over the movement of journalists in that zone¹⁸³. Overall, these restrictions were considered to be a risk to press freedom by the Commissioner for Human Rights of the Council of Europe, the Ombudsperson¹⁸⁴ as well as by the representatives of media and journalists associations who issued an open statement to that end¹⁸⁵.

The professional environment for journalists continues to deteriorate¹⁸⁶. The Law on Broadcasting and the Press Law¹⁸⁷ provides for safeguards of journalistic independence. Self-regulatory mechanisms are not developed within the journalistic community, which, as noted by stakeholders, does not improve the working environment for journalists¹⁸⁸. While journalists remain exposed to cases of physical and verbal abuse, including when covering public protests¹⁸⁹, the 2022 World Press Freedom Index reports that the level of violence has decreased. However, it considers that the protection of journalists and their rights during protests remains insufficient¹⁹⁰. The news media community continues¹⁹¹ to be exposed to threats stemming from strategic lawsuits against public participation (SLAPPs)¹⁹². Since July 2021, 24 alerts have been published on the Mapping Media Freedom platform and 14 of them concerned legal incidents related to journalists. In this period, the Council of Europe’s Platform to promote the protection of journalism and safety of journalists published 17 alerts, 14 of them related to legal incidents and five to harassment and psychological abuse¹⁹³. The 2022 Media Pluralism Monitor assesses the risks related to the journalistic profession, standards and protection at medium level¹⁹⁴. In addition, a recent legislative draft of the Ministry of Justice risks affecting the freedom of speech on the Internet, giving rise to editors’ concerns¹⁹⁵. The law would inter alia establish a public authority which would act as an appeal body for content moderation decisions taken by online platforms¹⁹⁶.

IV. OTHER INSTITUTIONAL ISSUES RELATED TO CHECKS AND BALANCES

Poland is a representative democratic republic with a directly elected President, a bicameral Parliament (Sejm and Senate) and a Constitutional Tribunal in charge of constitutional review of laws. The Sejm has the final decision-making power when adopting laws. The President of the Republic, the Senate, a group of 15 deputies, the Council of Ministers and a group of at least 100 000 citizens have the right to propose new legislation. The independent Ombudsperson is tasked with safeguarding the freedoms and rights of persons and citizens specified in the Constitution and other normative acts. The Supreme Audit Office is the chief organ of state audit, subordinate to the Sejm, acting in accordance with the principles of collegiality.

Significant reforms continue to be frequently adopted through the by-passing of procedures that require adequate consultations. Practice shows that the governmental legislative track, which entails the obligation of public consultations, is often not used, and laws are regularly tabled by groups of Members of Parliament¹⁹⁷. Such an approach results in a high share of laws not being subject to adequate public consultation¹⁹⁸. This practice practically prevents stakeholders from submitting their opinions on the draft legislation, and often postpone taking a position until the law has been transmitted to the Senate¹⁹⁹. Together, this increasingly affects the quality of the legislation. This issue was raised in the context of Prawo.pl of 24 January 2022, Organisations don’t want a “free speech on the internet” law, reproducing statements of business representatives and NGOs on the above issue.

¹⁹⁷ In 2021, 22% of the laws were passed using the MP-based legislative track, and 56% of the laws using the Government-based track were not consulted. Cf. Grant Thornton, ‘Law barometer. Analysis of the legal environment’s stability in the Polish economy’ 2022 Edition (the report analyses the stability of the legal environment in the Polish economy).

the 2019 and 2020 Country Specific Recommendations under the European Semester²⁰⁰. As part of its RRP, Poland made a commitment to adopt an amendment to the Rules of Procedure of the Sejm, the Senate and the Council of Ministers, which shall introduce a mandatory impact assessment and public consultation for draft laws proposed by deputies and senators and limit the use of fast-track procedures to well-specified and exceptional cases, with a view to a better and more stable regulatory framework. In this context, it is noted that the perceived level of effectiveness of investment protection by the law and courts is very low among companies²⁰¹.

On 1 January 2022, Poland had 38 leading judgments of the European Court of Human Rights pending implementation²⁰². At that time, Poland's rate of leading judgments from the past 10 years that remained pending was at 48% and the average time that the judgments had been pending implementation was 5 years and 10 months²⁰³. The oldest leading judgment, pending implementation for 17 years, concerns the excessive length of proceedings before administrative bodies and courts and absence of an effective remedy²⁰⁴. On 1 July 2022, the number of leading judgments pending implementation increased to 45²⁰⁵.

The new Ombudsperson continues to play a key role as a rule of law safeguard, while constrained by limited resources. On 8 and 21 July 2021 respectively, the Sejm appointed and the Senate approved the appointment of a new Ombudsperson with bi-partisan support²⁰⁶. As in previous years since 2016, the public authorities have not increased the budget allocated to the Ombudsperson's office for the year 2022, thereby limiting its capacity to exercise its role²⁰⁷, even though the Office is intensely involved in the humanitarian situation at the Polish-Belarusian border and provides assistance to refugees from Ukraine²⁰⁸. The Ombudsperson's cooperation with state authorities remains difficult, including due to the authorities' refusal to react to the Ombudsperson's statements or to take into account his comments and recommendations as regards legislative drafts²⁰⁹. The Ombudsperson retains 'A' status, ²⁰⁰ This was confirmed by representatives of the Ombudsperson's Office in the context of the virtual country visit to Poland. See also the ENHRI contribution to the 2022 Rule of Law Report, p. 408.

²⁰¹ Only 24% of companies are very or fairly confident in the effectiveness of investment protection in Poland, whereas 65% of companies are either fairly unconfident or very unconfident. The main reasons invoked by companies in that respect are frequent changes in legislation or concerns about quality of the law-making process as well as unpredictable, non-transparent administrative conduct and difficulty to challenge administrative decisions in courts; concerns about quality, efficiency or independence of justice also play a role in that respect, see figures 54 and 55, 2022 EU Justice Scoreboard.

²⁰³ All figures are calculated by the European Implementation Network and are based on the number of cases that are considered pending at the annual cut-off date of 1 January 2022. See the Contribution from the European Implementation Network for the 2022 Rule of Law Report, p. 61-62.

Despite allegations related to the use of Pegasus and equivalent spyware surveillance software, no investigation was launched by the prosecution service. On 21 December 2021, media reported²¹¹ that a barrister had been targeted by Pegasus software²¹². Using such software against barristers may compromise the lawyer's secrecy. Prosecution services declined to conduct an investigation into these matters²¹³. Stakeholders expressed serious concerns in that respect, pointing at the likelihood that more lawyers were targeted in this specific way²¹⁴. Amongst the alleged targets there was reportedly also a prosecutor and two members of opposition parties and a business representative²¹⁵. Reportedly, the Pegasus surveillance software²¹⁶ was purchased for the Central Anti-Corruption Bureau, which raises further concerns regarding the use of corruption investigations for political purposes. The Minister of National Security and Defence Matters confirmed that the Pegasus software had been acquired²¹⁷. Representatives of the governing coalition submitted that no surveillance method can be imposed without prior consent of the court²¹⁸. The Ombudsperson submitted that judicial control in that respect is insufficient and courts do not know what type of

The prosecutor declined the request to submit her phone device for further examination by the prosecution services. See RadioZet of 29 December 2021 where a statement of the prosecutor concerned is reproduced together with press statement of the public prosecutor's office.

As confirmed in the Senate, one of the members of the opposition concerned, at the time of the alleged Pegasus-based surveillance, was the main person responsible for the parliamentary electoral campaign in 2019. The business representative allegedly targeted was the President of the association 'Employers of the Republic of Poland'; see Onet.pl of 19 April 2022, Citizen Lab: another Pegasus victim in Poland.

²¹⁷ Wpolarity.pl of 7 January 2022, containing an interview in which the admission was made. On 14 January 2022, the Supreme Audit Office disclosed to the media two invoices which were assigned to the Central Anti-Corruption Bureau from the 'Justice Fund' – operated by the Ministry of Justice – to acquire 'means of special technique'. On 7 February 2022, the Supreme Audit Office organized a press conference where it informed the public that over 7000 'possibly dangerous' attacks had been conducted on electronic devices in possession of the Office's staff, including the President of the Supreme Audit Office. The Office has not confirmed that any of these alleged attacks had been carried out by means of the Pegasus software. According to the Office, financial means from the 'Justice Fund' could not be used for any such purchase in accordance with law. See minutes of the Senate's special Committee session of 18 January 2022.

surveillance would eventually be imposed by the state bodies²¹⁹. The Senate set up an extraordinary committee to conduct an inquiry into these developments²²⁰.

Government action on the Polish-Belarussian border under a state of emergency sparked concerns of stakeholders as to constitutionality and restriction of fundamental rights and freedoms. On 31 August 2021, in view of the crisis at the Polish-Belarussian border, the Government requested the President of the Republic to introduce a state of emergency on the territory of two Polish regions adjacent to the Belarussian border, limiting a number of constitutional rights and freedoms²²¹ (until 1 December 2021). Without questioning as such the state of emergency, the Ombudsperson raised concerns related to the disproportionate limitation of constitutional freedoms in that respect. Meanwhile, as the state of emergency could not be constitutionally prolonged past 1 December 2021, the Sejm adopted on 17 November 2021 a law empowering the Minister of Interior to impose a prohibition incumbent on any person to stay or move within the border-adjacent area²²². According to the Ombudsperson, another law concerning the situation at the Belarussian border raises severe constitutionality concerns notably related to the suspension of constitutional rights and freedoms²²³²²⁴.

The Supreme Audit Office continues its operation under adverse conditions. As of 2021, the Marshal of the Sejm has been refusing to appoint Members of the SAO College, thus hampering the effective functioning of the Office²²⁵. The Prosecutor-General has made a request to deprive the President of the SAO of his immunity, which is currently under examination of the Sejm²²⁶. Representatives of the SAO raised concerns about the lack of effective follow-up by the prosecution services to its requests made in the aftermath of

²²⁰ This committee has no inquisitorial competences. A motion to convene an inquisitorial committee remains pending before the Sejm. As regards the Senate, see the press release of 17 January 2022. As regards the Sejm, reference is made to draft motions lodged with the Sejm on, respectively, 11 January 2022 and 10 February 2022.

²²¹ According to the Polish constitution, a state of emergency may be introduced for a definite period no longer than 90 days and be extended once only for a period no longer than 60 days; press release of the government of 31 August 2021. According to the ordinance of the President of the Republic, the state of emergency entailed i.a. the suspension of the right to organise and hold assemblies and cultural events, the prohibition of staying in designated places, objects and areas, and the limitation of the access to public information as regards actions conducted in the area covered by the state of emergency; press release of the President of the Republic of 1 October 2021.

²²² Law of 17 November 2021 amending the Law on the Protection of the State Border and certain other laws. The set of prohibitions introduced was lifted as of 1 July 2022. According to the Polish government, these measures were introduced in order to ensure security or public order.

audits²²⁷. Furthermore, the chief office-holders in Poland refuse to cooperate with the SAO in the context of audit reports²²⁸. Since 2021, the Supreme Audit Office (‘SAO’) has produced a number of audit reports raising concerns regarding possible instances of public funds’ embezzlement and mismanagement by public authorities, notably by the Ministry of Justice²²⁹ and bodies responsible for implementing the state budget²³⁰. While the SAO raised concerns about developments adversely affecting its own independence at the forum of the European Organisation of Supreme Audit Institutions²³¹, no steps have so far been taken by the state authorities to rectify the situation.

Civil society plays a crucial role in providing help to refugees from Ukraine, following the Russian war of aggression against Ukraine. NGOs have been very active in providing psychological and medical support, interpretation services, and in supplying food and clothes to over three million refugees. In addition, the self-government of legal professions has been active in providing refugees with legal assistance free of charge²³². The Government has facilitated the process of financial donations to selected NGOs in this context and assigned about EUR 10 million to the NGOs assisting with the situation on the ground²³³. A group of 40 NGOs signed an open statement to the European Commission and the Council voicing concerns as regards the Polish Government’s initiatives to disburse additional EU funds aimed at helping the refugee crisis and the fact that funds do not reach local authorities and civil society²³⁴.

The civic space has further deteriorated. Poland continues to have a broad and vibrant civil society, consisting of more than 120 000 different NGOs. However, in view of the lack of action to address a continued deterioration in civic freedoms, assessments now characterise ²²⁹ Audit report No. P/20/037 of 30 September 2021 on the ‘Implementation of the tasks of the Victims’ Assistance and Post-penitentiary Assistance Fund – Justice Fund’. The report states that only 38% of resources under the Fund were used in a manner that is consistent with the Fund’s statutory aims, i.e. to provide help to victims of crimes. The remainder of resources allocated to the Fund was used to finance other activities giving rise to concerns of the SAO. Overall, subject to a possible embezzlement were PLN 280 million (ca. EUR 63 million). According to the SAO, in spite of a request to follow up on the audit’s findings and the expiry of the statutory deadlines, neither the Prime Minister nor the Deputy Prime Minister reacted to the request to undertake action. The Head of the Central Anti-Corruption Bureau stated that it is not competent to act. A possible embezzlement related to the Justice Fund – under the sole remit of the Minister of Justice – would need to be followed up by the prosecution services, headed by the Minister of Justice in his capacity of the Prosecutor-General.

²³⁰ The 2020 State Budget Discharge Report presented on 22 July 2021 before the Sejm. According to the SAO, this was the first time in the history of Poland that it was not possible to give a positive assessment of the budget’s implementation. Notably, according to the SAO findings, instances of absconding of large financial operations outside the legal framework of the Budget Law were detected. These operations resulted in a significant financial imbalance of the State in 2020 and an increase of almost EUR 100 billion in public debt. Calculated according to the same methodology, the previous increase of the public debt by a similar value had taken almost 10 years.

Poland's civic space as 'obstructed'²³⁵. LGBTIQ people and relevant NGOs continue being targeted by draft legislative initiatives²³⁶. Furthermore, no measures have been undertaken to address the concerns raised by NGOs as regards their access to public funding²³⁷. A number of the so-called 'LGBTIQ-ideology free' zones have been annulled by courts²³⁸, while three regional and several local governments decided to repeal these declarations on their own²³⁹. On 30 March 2022, a draft law was proposed²⁴⁰ aiming at ensuring 'transparency of non-governmental organisations'²⁴¹, giving rise to concerns of stakeholders; the draft law would create a national registry of NGOs "financed from abroad" (with an exception for NGOs receiving EU funds), which would also in specific circumstances be under an obligation to disclose the list of donors and indicate the origin of their funding on promotional materials²⁴². Stakeholders have also expressed concerns on a draft law amending the regime governing the offence of religious beliefs²⁴³. Moreover, a law was introduced to the Sejm seeking to substantially increase the control over schools' functioning by central government's representatives who would be in position to notably decide on admitting or refusing access of individual NGOs to extracurricular activities of schools²⁴⁴.

²³⁵ CIVICUS update of 8 February 2022. Rating given by CIVICUS. Ratings are on a five-category scale defined as: open, narrowed, obstructed, repressed and closed. In 2020 and 2021, civic space was considered as 'narrowed'.

²³⁶ E.g. draft law submitted on 9 August 2021 as citizens' legislative initiative amending the Law on Assemblies and certain other laws (pending), seeking to outlaw the promotion of civil partnerships and same-sex marriages. On 13 January 2022, the Sejm adopted a Law amending the Law on Passport Documents which makes it substantially difficult or even blocks the possibility to receive a Polish passport by children born into same-sex couples. See Contribution from ILGA Europe and International Planned Parenthood Federation European Network's for the 2022 Rule of Law Report. Also, Poland has been ranked last in the EU as regards the treatment of LGBTIQ groups, see Kampania Przeciw Homofobii, statement of 12 May 2022, referring to ILGA-Europe 2022 Rainbow Europe Map (<https://www.rainbow-europe.org/>).

²⁴⁴ The law of 13 January 2022 amending the Law on Education and certain other laws. This law was vetoed by the President of the Republic on 2 March 2022. On 3 June 2022, the Minister of Education stated that the same law was proposed anew and is now consulted with the Chancellery of the President of the Republic in view of its entry into force by September 2022. See press release of the President of the Republic of 2 March 2022 and the statement of the Minister of Education (in Edukacja.dziennik.pl of 3 June 2022). One of such representatives already used the so-called 'black list' of NGOs to block their access to schools. The list, including prominent NGOs functioning also on global scale, was created with the intention to identify entities that spread 'harmful content' and views allegedly inconsistent with the school curricula. See WP.pl, of 24 January 2022; Głos Nauczycielski of 8 February 2022.
